

WV Secretary of State Mac Warner is currently serving in his fourth year as West Virginia's chief elections official.

He is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and the West Virginia University School of Law. He also holds two Masters Degrees - one in International Law from the University of Virginia and one in Military Law from The Army's Judge Advocate General's School.

During his 23-year career in the United States Army, Secretary Warner served on four continents, deploying to military hot spots around the world while also serving on the staff at the U.S. Army War College.

Prior to being elected West Virginia's 30th Secretary of State, Secretary Warner served five years with the U.S. State Department in Afghanistan.

Under Secretary Warner's leadership, West Virginia has become recognized as a national leader in election cybersecurity. He has been the featured speaker at conferences throughout the nation. His comprehensive public education campaign on "Russian & Foreign Influence in American Elections" is now being used as the template for states all across America.
